

Ph.D. candidate in mathematics education at Cornell University

Mircea Pitici

He teaches mathematics courses and writing seminars at Cornell and Ithaca College

Coming to CCSU!

“The Making of The Best Writing on Mathematics Series”

- ideas, people, and (mis) adventures-

Friday, February 15, 2013

2:00-3:00 PM

Maria Sanford Hall, Room 101

The Best Writing on Mathematics is an annual series of anthologies aimed not only at professional mathematicians but also at non-mathematicians interested in matters concerning mathematics. Each volume offers a collection of remarkable writings on the nature, practice, teaching, history, philosophy, and importance of mathematics, texts already published during the preceding year in a variety of sources from around the world.

The series initiator and editor, Mircea Pitici, will speak about the ideas and the circumstances that led him to start this series and about the people who are instrumental in making it happen. He will also discuss the elements of good writing on mathematics.

For directions to CCSU, or for information for past or future colloquia presentations please visit the website www.math.ccsu.edu/gotchev/colloquium

Faculty, students, and staff are welcome to this talk, whether their work is related to mathematics or not.